National Unity Day, also known as "Rastriya Ekta Diwas," is celebrated in India on October 31st each year to honour the legacy of Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel, one of the country's most revered leaders. This day is dedicated to commemorating his contributions in uniting the princely states of India into a single nation, making him the "Iron Man of India."

To celebrate National Unity Day, various events and activities are organized throughout the country. The most notable of these is the "Run for Unity" campaign, wherein people from all walks of life participate in runs and marathons to promote unity and integration. Additionally, schools, colleges, government offices, and other institutions often conduct special programs, discussions, and cultural events to raise awareness about Sardar Patel's life and his significant role in the country's history.

The centrepiece of the National Unity Day celebration is the "Statue of Unity." Standing at a towering 182 meters (597 feet), it is the world's tallest statue, located in the Indian state of Gujarat. This colossal statue of Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel symbolizes his immense contributions to the unity and integrity of India.

National Unity Day serves as a reminder of the importance of unity and harmony in a diverse and pluralistic nation like India. It underlines the need for citizens to come together, transcending regional, linguistic, and cultural differences, to work collectively for the progress and development of the country. In honouring Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel's legacy, India pays homage to a visionary leader who played a pivotal role in shaping the nation as it stands today.
